

Important Message for CommuniComm TV customers

Effective immediately, CommuniComm must change its TV channel lineups for customers in many of its service areas because of federal retransmission consent laws and network non-duplication rules. CommuniComm has been forced to drop channels in select markets because we have been denied the right to broadcast the signals. These deletions and the associated channel replacements will roll into effect beginning now through January 1, 2012. Not all of CommuniComm's service areas are affected.

- For details about any changes in your area, please see below.
- Updated channel lineups are available here. (Some lineups may not be available until Friday, December 30, 2011.)

A combination of factors has led to this situation. Most notably, outdated and overly prescriptive federal retransmission consent and network non-duplication laws and rules have granted the broadcasters, both a monopoly in their markets and the right to demand payment for their signals. The two rules combined give the local television stations extraordinary market power in their retransmission consent negotiations with cable operators (which typically occur every three years) allowing them to effectively offer "take-it-or leave" it deals.

Federal laws and regulations give broadcasters enormous bargaining leverage over our cable company. TV stations' "blackmail or blackout" strategy will continue to frustrate pay-TV consumers until Congress decides to change an irresponsible law biased in favor of broadcasters.

We at CommuniComm remain committed to delivering reliable and affordable choices in TV, Internet and home phone service – all backed up by great local service – to the families and businesses that we serve. We know that we serve our neighbors.

We apologize for the inconvenience and look forward to continuing to provide your TV, Internet, and home telephone services. Thank you for being a valued CommuniComm customer.
